

Ellen H. Chae

Research Analyst-Investment Division
Russell Investments

A.B., Political Science, Smith College, 1990

M.B.A., Finance, Kellogg Graduate School of Management, 1997

Ellen Chae is a senior research analyst for Russell Investments, on the global equity team. Ellen joined Russell in 2007 to research investment products and institutional money managers that cover the world's equity markets.

Ellen started her career in finance in 1990 joining Goldman Sachs as an analyst in the structured finance group working with mortgage and asset based products. She joined Lehman Brothers in 1997 as an associate covering the personal computer and disk drive sectors in the equity research department.

In 1998 she moved with her team to Prudential Securities and was promoted to senior equity analyst covering the electronic manufacturing services and electronic components sectors in 2000. She has traveled extensively throughout Asia, Europe and Latin America in researching the global electronics supply chain. Ellen was voted best up and comer in her sector by Institutional Investor Magazine in 2001.

Most recently, Ellen was involved in private equity focusing on angel investing through Seraph Capital in Seattle and working with earthmine, a start-up geospatial mapping company based in Berkeley, California.